CHARITY BALL.

The ball in aid of the new general hospital under the auspices of a committee of ladies of Edmonton, which was held last evening in Robertson hall, was a magnificent success.

Over 300 people were present, being the largest attendance at any ball given in Edmonton, this too when the condition of the river was such as to prevent any attendance from the other side. The hall was beautifully decorated. Red, white and blue bunting was hung from the ceiling and disposed diagonally. The gallery was draped in pink and white and the opposite wall in yellow. The north wall was decorated with national flags. The ice cream and lemonade stand under the gallery box was walled with heavy chenille curtains. The front of the stage was occupied by the musicians, and the rear was curtained off as a smoking and card room. The Edmonton band was present and provided excellent music for a large number of the dances. Members of the orchestral society also gave their services.

L. Gurneau on the violin, J. Flynn on the tin whistle, and Messrs. Andrews and Boyle Mrs. Royal, Miss Martin, Miss McLeod and others on the piano also gave valuable assistance. The floor was in excellent order, so that with the good music, dancing was thoroughly enjoyable. The gallery was occupied by on-lookers; who seemed to enjoy the scene as much as the dancers.

Supper was served in the dining room of the Queen's hotel and was all that could be wished for or thought of in variety, quality and abundance. The hours for supper were from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Dancing was continued until half past four this morning.

The ice cream and lemonade stand was managed by Mrs. S. S. Taylor, and Misses Charbonneau and Calvert. A thriving trade was done, realizing over $300. The music and decorations were under the direction of Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Ayles, who had, as valuable assistants in the decoration, Messrs. Edmiston, Stephen, Almon, Bridges, Larue, T. G. Lauder, Chalmers and Gariepy.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson of the Queen's, gave the use of their dining room and stove. Mr. E. L. Thomas, a commercial traveller, distinguished himself by carving all the meats and fowls, for which valuable service he receives the best thanks of the ladies.

There are many others, both ladies and gentlemen, entitled to honorable mention in connection with the ball, but time and space forbids. The lively stables, however, must not be forgotten, as they provided free rigs for ladies when required for the purposes of the ball. Taken all in all it was an unqualified success and realized somewhere about $300.

THE FARMERS' FRIEND.

The farmer has hosts of friends—when he has money to spend or votes to give; and indeed at all times there are many of various ranks who loudly and persistently claim for themselves the destination of being special friends of the farmer. Of this class is the railway company, the grain dealer, the politician, the newspaper and the professional agitator. It is not of any of these the BULLETIN wishes to speak at this time, but of a more lowly and yet more useful friend than any of them, namely the hog—the same animal that in his universal, perpetual and irrepres- sible desire to eat, has brought upon himself more maledictions of the farmers and of everyone else who has had the ill luck to come in contact with him when alive, than probably any other living creature; who has been specifically declared a public nuisance by almost every town or township in the world. But the objections to the hog only apply to him as a hog, that is when alive and when the appetite which has made his name a term of reproach holds sway. When he becomes pork, bacon, ham, spiced roll, sausage, head cheese, or lard, the objection which was so violent and universal against him when alive is changed to as strong and as universal popular approval. He is welcomed everywhere in one form or another from palace to cottage. Owing to the peculiar qualities of his meat, which permit of its being cured so as to stand all climates and yet retain its nutritive and tasty qualities, it is not too much to say that the hog has been one of the greatest aids to discovery, conquest and industrial development everywhere. The flesh of the hog, then, is something that is in demand the world over, it is inexpensive to cure and cheap to freight, therefore it is universally available. The market for pork is as wide as the market for wheat, and as pork is a more condensed form of food than flour, is quite as easily handled and less liable to damage, its carriage to market is not so great a proportionate charge upon the producer as in the case of wheat. This is what tells in favor of the production of pork in regions situated as is Edmonton, far from the great markets of the world, where the cost of carriage on products of small value and great bulk such as wheat and oats, leaves nothing to the producer. The charge for carriage of wheat from Edmonton to Montreal is about half a cent a pound, or say 30 cents a bushel. That is, one-third of the present Montreal price is paid in freight. Pork is, or would be, carried at about a cent a pound. With the Montreal price, 6 cents a pound, the freight is only one-sixth of that price, or only half as much in proportion to the price as the freight on wheat. And this after allowing twice as much for the carriage of a pound of bacon as for the carriage of a pound of grain. If the railroad would carry pork at the same rate per pound as wheat, as it could, then the freight would be only one-twelfth of the price on pork as against one-third on wheat, an advantage of four to one in favor of the hog. Of course sometime the price of wheat may go up, but wheat would have to be a dollar and eighty cents a bushel in Montreal, to put the Edmonton farmer shipping wheat at half a cent a pound freight on the same footing as to freight charges as the Edmonton farmer shipping pork is now, who pays a cent a pound freight charges and gets 6c. a pound for his pork in Montreal. There is very little chance of wheat ever reaching a dollar and eighty cents in Montreal, and as little of it ever being hauled from Edmonton for less than half a cent a pound. On the other hand the rate on pork might be reduced considerably and still allow a profit to the railway over what they make on wheat, and the price of pork in Montreal is as likely to be over as under six cents in the future. The advantage in the future is all on the side of the hog. This is speaking of the future, when the production of pork in this district shall have outgrown the local demand. But there is no probability of the home supply outgrowing the home demand for a number of years yet. The local demand is very large and must continually increase as the great region to the north of us is developed and opened up. British Columbia, too, will always require an immense amount of bacon in its mining and lumbering industries, which are only beginning to be developed. At the present time dressed and live hogs are the best product the Edmonton farmer has. The one which can most readily be turned into cash and the one for which there is the most demand. It is true that in former years the demand has been limited because there was not enough produced to warrant the investment of capital in the handling of it. But once capital has been invested the larger the supply of the product the more cheaply it can be handled and therefore the greater the profit both to the farmer and investor. There is no danger of glutting the market by over production—for even if the local market is fully supplied the market of the world is more widely open to bacon than to any other product of the farm.

So much for the hog when dead. What about him when alive? The appetite which perpetually leads him into trouble and makes him a general nuisance is the very thing that makes him particularly valuable in a mixed farming country. He will eat anything that can be eaten, and no matter how valueless the kind of food in itself, the hog will, with the least possible waste, condense it into flesh worth from four to six cents a pound. Of course the hog cannot make a pound of half cent oats or barley into a pound of four cent pork or ten cent bacon, or fifteen cent ham; but he will condense, say twelve pounds of barley worth six cents—which in its raw state would not pay the cost of its carriage to the eastern market—into a pound of bacon worth six cents in Montreal and which will cost only one cent to get it there, thereby making into an article fitted for export a product that otherwise could not be exported. Of course there may not be more profit in feeding hogs than is given in the foregoing sentence. Some people claim that six cents worth of grain will make twelve cents worth of bacon; and so it will if the price of grain is low enough and that of bacon high enough. On the other hand if the price of grain is high and that of bacon low there is naturally a loss in feeding the grain to hogs. But in this part of the country where the chief crops are oats, barley and potatoes, products of large bulk and small value, which owing to our situation suffer in value most severely from cost of carriage, and which are particularly well adapted for hog feed, we can depend that the rule will be that it will pay better to feed them to hogs and export the hogs than to grow them in the hope of finding an adequate and profitable market for them, either local or export. In raising hogs the Edmonton farmer is at very little disadvantage in regard to freights as compared with the Manitoba or Ontario farmer, while he has the great advantage of cheaper land and a more abundant growth of the grains and roots suitable for producing pork. Whereas if the Edmonton farmer depends upon competing with the Manitoba or Ontario farmer in the Eastern market with grain, even though it be wheat, he is very seriously handicapped by freights over immense distances which cannot be annihilated. As cattle will turn the abundant and never failing—although in its natural state valueless—grass of the prairies and hay of the swamps into valuable beef, which can be profitably exported to England, so the hog will turn the cheap and easily raised coarse grains and roots of this district into a valuable article of export, the market for which is not restricted to England but extends the length and breadth of the world.

GENERAL NEWS.

Trail, B. C., the port of the mining town of Rossland, has a paper.

A strike of gold quartz is reported at Aassiz, B. C., near Vancouver.

The wool crop of Manitoba and the Northwest this year will exceed 800,000 pounds.

The ordinances passed at the last session of the legislative assembly will be published in book form about the 1st of December.

Yardmaster Hardisty, of Canmore, had his hand badly pinched between two cars on Tuesday and will lose two fingers as a result.

The first regular train on the Kaslo & Slocan railway has reached Sandon from Kaslo. The railway is a narrow gauge and runs on a three per cent grade for the greater part of its length.

The board of education has suspended the certificate of J. F. A. Stull, teacher of Prince Albert public school, for one year from November 1, for having at the last examination allowed some of his pupils to copy.

Brampton, Ont., Conservator: "Now that the government has decided to open Cardwell it should go a step further and fill all the vacant offices, and hold elections wherever necessary. The majority is large. If a few seats are lost through the greed of false friends let them go. Better have five or six more grit members in the house than have the seats held down by men whose only object in retaining them is to secure jobs for themselves or for the members of their families."

The following from the Hamilton Spectator affords a conservative view of the recent action of Mr. R. S. White, who resigned his seat for Cardwell: An explanation of the reason for Mr. White's resignation is now made which seems to be reasonable and is most likely correct. It is this: Mr. White gave a pledge to his Cardwell constituents that he would vote against any attempt to interfere with Manitoba's right to govern her own schools, and having been assured that the government really intended to introduce coercive legislation at the next session, he found himself in a box. If he kept his seat he must break his promise to his constituents, or he must vote against the government, which had promised him the customs collectorship at Montreal. To square himself he was obliged to resign. It now remains to be seen whether the government will keep its promise and give Mr. White the job, or whether it will hold the office open to competition among the Montreal politicians during the coming election.

Medicine Hat Times: The result of the initial shipment of Australian cattle to Great Britain shows tolerably conclusively that there will have to be a remarkable change in marine traffic conditions before the cattle raisers of the Island-Continent can compete with our own in the British markets. The cattle themselves cost only $20 per head on an average in Sidney; but the freight, fodder, cost of insurance and attendance on the voyage came to $90 per head for each of the cattle, and $6.10 for each of the sheep. The shipment consisted of 550 bullocks and 488 sheep, but owing to the voyage taking over two months, and the rough weather experienced off Cape Horn, 52 of the cattle died at sea. This added still further to the loss, and it is estimated that the Australian shippers will lose $20,000 by their venture after the expenses of fitting up the ship, installing condensers, etc., have been taken into consideration. This should prove that it is impossible to ship cattle 13,000 miles at a cost sufficiently low to compete with Canadian cattle. At the present prices ruling in England our own cattle shippers, who have only 3,000 miles of a temperate ocean to traverse, whose freight does not exceed from $9.75 to $11, as to port, and who can land their cattle in England from ten to fourteen days, can barely come out even.

Regina Standard: Whatever fault the close critic might find with Mr. Neff, it is universally admitted that his presence here was very perceptible to all who had business with the department over which he presided that of public works. Mr. Neff occupied for years a position in the assembly from which it was difficult to gauge his executive ability. Last session he certainly made a good record as a debater, and defended with marked ability executive acts for which he was not personally responsible. An opportunity to earn the lasting gratitude of the people of the Northwest now lies before him. That the work of the local government, as a whole, is not and never has been systematically, punctually and effectively conducted is a reproach which he can remove, if he chooses to apply himself vigorously and fearlessly to the task. Of course he could not be expected to begin before becoming thoroughly acquainted with existing conditions. But he has now been around nearly long enough to see how matters are conducted. Let him not merely supervise or require of others but make his influence felt in all departments. Mr. Haultain is frequently absent on public business. The members of the executive are upon an equality before the law. Let them also be on an equality before their subordinates. It is due to the officials themselves that only such as are actually needed be retained, that they be given plenty to do, and be well paid for doing it.

Macled Gazette: The division of Alberta into two parts has long been contended for by the press of the country, as a matter of the purest justice. It is impossible for one man to properly represent such a vast constituency. The interests of the north and south are totally dissimilar. One is quite as important as the other, and it requires for each of the two parts a man who is intimately acquainted with the wants and requirements of the district which he represents. It is to be hoped that, before the government decide upon the location of the dividing line, they will carefully consider the matter from every point of view. While, from the point of view of population, Alberta is entitled to two representatives, still population should not be the only consideration in making the division. The difference in the interests of the two sections should have some influence in guiding the decision. It should be the aim of the government to draw the dividing line as nearly as possible between the agricultural interests of the north and the stock industry of the south. Probably no boundary line would more surely do this than the Canadian Pacific Railway.

AGRICOLA.

The thanks of the farming community are due to our M. L. A., for having so promptly and efficiently improved the grades at the creek banks on the trail to South Edmonton, as soon as his attention was drawn to the necessity for doing the work. These grades were very hard on loaded teams and were most dangerous in icy weather, but now the ascents are much easier and the railing erected has made them quite safe for the most careless teamster. The grade at Mill Creek may be improved immensely at a very small cost and we venture to hope Mr. Oliver's hand may not weary in well doing.

Agricola farmers seem inclined to hold their grain for better prices, many are feeding quite a number of hogs intending to market their grain in the shape of pork.

Fall plowing is well advanced and most of our farmers have taken advantage of the fine weather to fully prepare their wheat land for the spring sowing. Agricola farmers will not be behind in maintaining the reputation of their district.

Mr. Toole, of the C. P. R. lands department, paid us a visit last week. He expressed himself as being well pleased with the great progress made by the Parry Sound colonists of 1892, many of whom are settled in this neighborhood.

BEAVER LAKE (EAST).

On Sunday evening, October 20th, a destructive prairie fire swept down upon this settlement from the northwest. The wind at times blew with terrific force, making it almost useless to attempt fighting the flames, except on the western side. This is the second time the settlement has been endangered by prairie fires, the first being the one that burned out W. Bloss and others at the south end. That fire, however, was kept within bounds here, and did comparatively little harm, but this one left a track of dire destruction behind it. No human lives were lost (though Messrs. A. R. Moody, John Livingstone, and Alex. McAllister had narrow escapes while fighting the fire; the latter having his hat blown away while holding it before his face to ward off the intense heat) but two horses belonging to a young man named Stewart became bewildered in the hurricane of fire and smoke and rushed into an open stable, where they perished. Several pigs and domestic fowls were also burnt. Quite a number of the settlers on the west side came over to help, and aided very materially in saving Mr. Proctor's property. Subsequently the fire worked its way around to the Logan settlement, but so far as I can learn has not done much harm. The following is a list of the losses on the east side: Chas. Clarke, stables, hay, grain stacks, some pigs, &c.; Philip Atkinson, hay, grain stacks, stable; August Verch, hay, grain stacks, (about 1,200 bushels if threshed) stable, several pigs, &c.; Amos Frenzen, grain stacks, hay, and stable; H. Bradley, hay, grain stacks, stables, buggy, harness, &c.; John Asher, hay and stables; Mrs. Hunter, set of house logs; Alex. McAllister, house and contents, stable, granary, hay and fencing; P. Cronan, 40 tons of hay; John Livingstone, two pigs; Messrs. A. R. Moody, F. W. Fane, Malcolm McCallum and Geo. Smith also lost a considerable amount of hay. It is supposed that this fire originated in the vicinity of the "Pines" south of Beaver Creek settlement.

Oct 29th, 1895.

Battleford Herald: "Next Summer." Application will be made to parliament "to incorporate a railway from Fort Churchill through the Territory of Keewatin, south of Churchill river and north of Nelson river to Lee Falls, on said river; thence north of Lake Winnipeg to Prince Albert; thence in a direct line to Calgary, with power to construct a branch line from Manitoba Lake to Edmonton." A grand scheme, surely, and one that may have the effect of making Hugh Sutherland get a move on with his Hudson's Bay Railway. But we protest in advance against giving this company a land along its line. All the land on the north of it is required as a preserve for Sir John Schultz's colony of Laplanders and their imported reindeer; that to the south of it is needed as pasture and hay land for Indian department cattle.

The Moose Jaw Times in an article on the government managed creamery at that place intimates that the creamery has been a success in the manufacture of good butter and in distributing cash amongst its patrons. That it has not been a financial success to the shareholders, even with government assistance, may be judged from the following remarks: "Being under government supervision and operated for the benefit of the people it was contended that a system of compulsory subscription would not be tolerated. So that while the patrons have obtained the highest market price for their butter and enjoyed the profits of the creamery the present shareholders have advanced cash to keep the concern running. This is not as it should be and although not permissible where compulsory, the plan of the directors conveys their wish and all who have been benefitted should come forward and subscribe voluntarily on the basis as defined by the directors. This would place the creamery on a good financial basis and relieve those who have been struggling to keep it in existence and who are really entitled to better treatment."

Five trainloads of cattle were shipped from Lethbridge last week from the Cochrane, Brown and Circle ranches.

The Macleod Gazette mentions the deaths of T. La Nouze, an ex-policeman, and J. C. Nelson, of the Indian reserve surveys, and says: "Two within a fortnight! It looks as if the grim reaper were on the trail of the old timer, and must remind us that we are getting nearly to the end of our picket rope, with only a little fuel left on the outside of the circle. When that is exhausted it will be night, the picket rope will snap and we shall have to grope our way to the new feeding ground alone."

Calgary Tribune on R. S. White's resignation: "Unless the premier shows that he is the leader of the government, teaches the members of the cabinet their places, and decides on a policy as to the chief questions of the day which will not oblige his supporters to keep shifting their positions every hour, the administration will soon be effectually relieved from the necessity of fulfilling its promises at all. And the government will meet its fate from conservatives, not from reformers. No self-respecting conservatives will get out at election time and work for a prolongation of the exhibition of mutinous humbuggery the cabinet is at present engaged in affording the country."

Regina Leader: We believe that because of the climatic influence of prairie fires, their prevention is by long odds and imperatively the most important problem in respect to the settlement and development of the West with which the government of Canada has to deal. So long as the public lands are retained by the federal authorities, to deal with prairie fires is a matter that intrinsically devolves upon the Dominion government. Whilst in settled districts ploughed or burnt fire-guards are comparatively safe preventatives—and we are of the opinion that the gravity of the case would make justifiable a law compelling the maintenance of fire guards—there are yet vast stretches of unsettled lands, the property of the Dominion government and corporations under its direction, which it would be practically an impossibility to adequately fire-guard in that manner. Upon those stretches a Dominion fire police ought to be posted in season. Let the government utilize the mounted police, or organize a special fire police force. If, as is contended, the mounted police cannot do the work, then a special force is an urgent requirement.

GRAIN.

All the threshers are still busy and some have a month's work still in view. Considering that threshing began in August, and the number of machines, this speaks of a large amount of grain even in a poor year. The sales of binding twine for the Edmonton district this season was about 60,000 pounds. The twine in use ran from a pound in the eastern to four pounds per acre in the western part of the district. Placing the average at 2 1/2 pounds per acre, this would give 24,000 acres of grain crop, which at 20 bushels per acre would make 480,000 bushels of grain in the district this year. Of course this is in very many more men's hands than the same amount would be in Manitoba and therefore there is not nearly as great a proportion for sale. Still there must be a great deal more than most people have calculated on.

Grain and potatoes are beginning to come in more freely since plowing ceased. Prices are unchanged.
